Dedication - Mrs. Norma Kozaka

The bulk of our high school responsibilities came at the beginning of our junior year. Along with these responsibilities came two new advisors to help our class carry on. One of these breaths of fresh air was Mrs. Norma Kozaka. Her dedication and enthusiasm arrived just in time to resurrect the spirit of the class of 1989, the spirit that had been buried deep inside of us all. Thanks to her and Ms. Paiva the M&M's were sold, Powderpuff was organized, and our Junior Prom was an enormous success! She along with our three other advisors including Mrs. Bradbury and Mrs. Blythe, have become honorary members of the class of 1989 because of their energy. Whether Mrs. Kozaka is playing the role of wife, mother, teacher, advisor, or friend she is truly a saint without whose brilliant smile we could not do. The continued success of the class of 1989 is due in great part to Mrs. Kozaka, and for that, we all thank her tremendously.

A closer look

This year we entered the school knowing it was our last year At the thought of this we all began to examine the way things went. Things seemed to look totally different as we took "A Close Look" at A.H.S. We examined all teachers and peirs personalities and their different qualities. We looked at everything from a different perspective. We focused on the positive aspects instead of focusing on the negative ones, this gave Attleboro High School a better air to it. Taking this "Closer Look" will have the great memories of A.H.S. stay with us forever.

"Mike sticking out your tongue isn't going to help you hit the ball farther.

Mr O'Connele tutors Mike Stanton.

Over here - - - - - Over here!!!!

Adam Fitton exclaims, "Check out my flashy smile."

Too much to do . . .

Beth Dumont thinks to herself, "What a wonderful day".

Anna finds something worth checking out!

Aaron ponders the answer to the question.

Sandy Boyes finds time during lunch to study for her next period.

A typical day in the life of a A.H.S. student is filled with many responsibilities. Not only are we occupied with schoolwork and extracurricular activities but also maintaining a social life. More often than not time becomes a major factor. Time to study, time for classwork, time to socialize, time to work or play. Somehow we amazingly manage to do it all.

Jen Johnson

"If I think real hard maybe I'll be able to come up with an answer."

Lynn Edwards is thinking, "Let's see, do I have all my books?"

Terrence Kenney thinks to himself, "If I could only sell these last two cases."

. . . in too little time

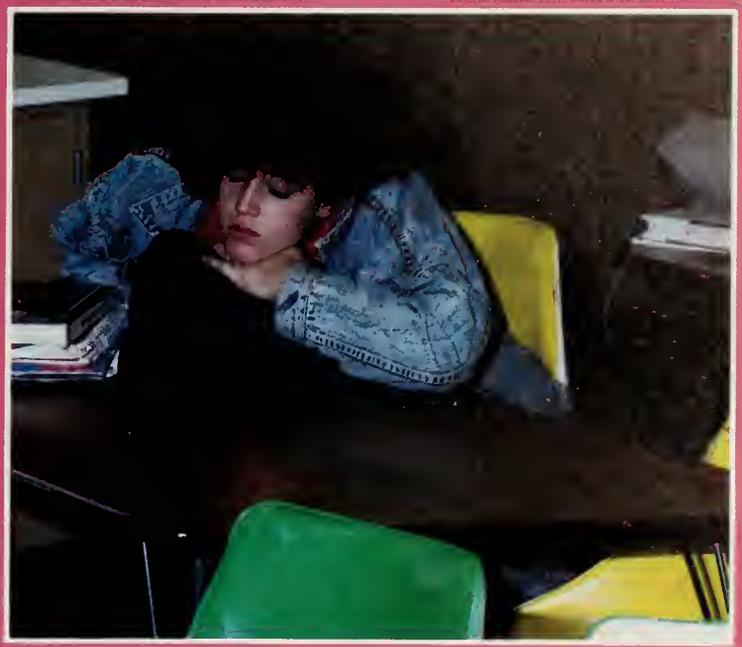
What really happens . . .

Doug Blais takes a break from U.S. History to dream about Mr. Bonneville.

Karen Ellis slowly drifts off while reading her "enjoyable" english book.

Max Drinkwalter dreams about his superior blocking skills during math.

Brian Wheelock kicks back in Tech Drawing.



Melanie Sousa dreams of her upcoming weekend.

The classroom is defined as a forum for learning. If an observer were to come into any A.H.S. class, he would see that learning is not the only thing occurring:

The setting is a fifth period Chemistry class. The teacher is standing in front of his students laboriously trying to instill chemical equations into their minds. A low hum can be heard over the teacher's voice (the social butterflies are spreading rumors as usual). There is a student staring longingly out the window, appearing to be in some sort of comatose state.

Another student who stayed out too late is catching up on his ZZZs. Several students are completing work for their next classes. Paper airplanes occasionally fly across the room and giggles are always heard.

This description by far depicts many classrooms at our school. Without this added confusion school would become, should we say, um . . . boring?!

Friendships –

Robin Diaz, Jeannette Petrie, and Heather Dalton show their friendship during lunch in B2.

Marianne Lehey, Kelley Maloy, and Nicki Kettle pick up breakfast on the way to school.

Nicole Gagni, and Kari Croteau show the support to Chris Craige.

Dee Rheaume, Mike Stanley, and Dawn Handy clown around during an assembly.

Creatures of habit

Are we all creatures of habit at Attleboro High School? A visitor to our school might think so. They would notice our strange behavior and our outrageous spirit. Every morning we drag our half asleep bodies into first period and plop them down at our regular seats, and ask, "What the heck am I doing here?" and then the countdown until Friday begins.

Between classes we go to our regular hangouts and talk with our friends about last weekends events and this weekends plans. We immediately head for the wall in B2 to hear the latest gossip.

The Highest point of our day is definitely lunch. As we walk through the cafeteria doors we enter the War Zone. This is where we fight for chairs, tables, and our regular seats to eat. After we are seated at our overly crowded tables, we engage in loud conversation and cram for next period's test.

Although class time isn't our favorite part of the day we try to make the most of it. Many of us doodle or try to see how many M&M's we can shovel into our mouths before the teacher catches us. In all different ways we are all creatures of habit.

Dawn Handy

Jeff Machado relaxes in tech. drawing.

Mark Nimoroski is still trying to wake up, and being in class doesn't help much!

Football teammates Chris Craig and Lenny Munson hang around together on and off the field.

These senior creatures can't break the habit of hanging on the wall in B2.

Dale Rheaume and Eric Fera try out a new handshake as Lynn Fernandes looks on.

Diane Ascencio does a balancing act on the wall in cafeteria B2.

Speak no evil, hear no evil, see no evil.

Kevin Fay shows that he is the master of Physics.

Kelly Cunningham expresses her views of why Bush should be our next President.

The Two O'Clock Rush

All day long you have been listening to teachers talk about things you could care less about. Now it is seventh period and the boredom syndrome begins, when you slip into another world far away from the confines of the classroom. You might be staring out the window or at the floor, sleeping or doodling.

Whatever the case, no one can make contact with you.

You look up to find that there are only ten minutes left until the 2:00 bell. Immediately anxiety sets in. The next minute seems extremely long, but eventually the clock reads 1:51. The teacher's voice

Matt and Jaimie waste no time leaving after their last class.

Todd Sidel thinks to himself, "Its 2:00, I can make up that Trig test tomorrow.

These two aren't taking any time to socialize. They can't wait to get home and do there homework.

starts to get on your nerves and you feel as if you are going to explode. You start moving around in your seat, but you just can't get comfortable. Your eyes keep darting towards the clock. You are afraid that time will stop. It is 1:55. The tension is extreme. You aren't studying, so you close your book. You begin to gather your things and the rest of the class follows. Anarchy begins and the teacher can't regain control. You begin the countdown 10, 9, 8, 7, . . . The bell rings and an enormous weight is lifted. You are overcome with a sense of freedom that will only last until the next first period.

Student at A.H.S. always seem to be smiling when the 2:00 bell rings

Mike hall waves good-bye because school is finally over.

Dina and Anne are on their way to make up another joyous gym class.

Darel Sylva won't be bothered by anyone as he exits the building.

Graduation

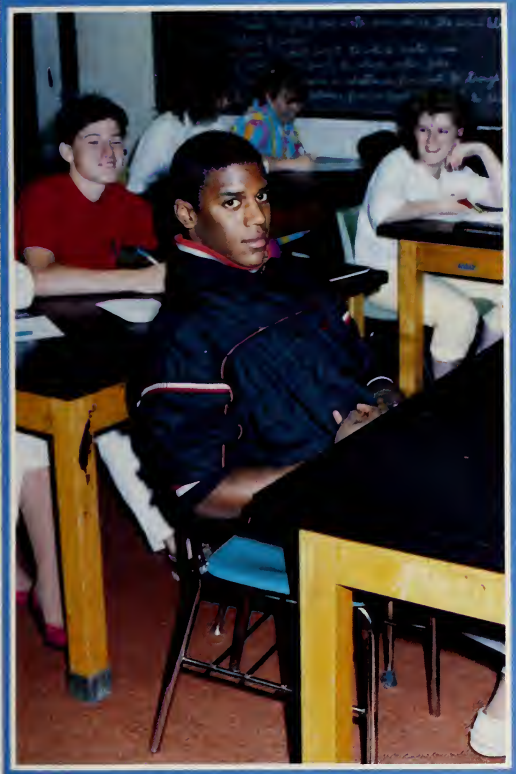
Liz McChesney is happy with the thought that she will be graduating soon.

Roy Clark and Kevin Desrosiers discuss what they will do after graduation.

Jen Burns practices how she will pose for all the pictures that will be taken.

Jen Brusseau is caught day dreaming about graduation in senior lounge.

Does Rick Greene plan to pursue an aviational career after he graduates?



You would think after four years of high school, Eric Brefini would know which way to go to his next class.

Darrell Silva patiently waits for the day of graduation.

Julie and Kenny show their friendship while strolling through B2.

Graduation- the moment you've waited for all your life. For twelve years you've anticipated the moment that they would call your name and you would rise to go to the podium. It only lasts a split second, but for that short time span you're on top of the world.

Unfortunately, graduation isn't all glory and happiness. The weeks before are hectic, with all the rehearsals and Senior events taking place. Everyone demands that you be in ten places at once, when all you really want to do is be at the beach enjoying the first days of summer.

After the ceremony, everyone is snapping pictures that will sit in a scrapbook long after they have forgotten the people's names. Last, but not least, the moment that everyone dreads, leaving their friends. For some, the last time they shall see the people whom they have spent the past four years is when they walk off the field. Some will keep in touch over the summer and during college, but they're a very rare few.

Depending on how sentimental you are, graduation can be the best and worst time of your high school career. Hopefully, you'll choose to let the good memories outweigh the sadness of leaving.

SENIOR DANCE

AN ENCHANTING DANCE FOR THE SENIOR

During our four years of High School, our first function as a class was the Freshman Social, which was held in the Student Forum. Now, as Seniors about to graduate we attend our last function in the Student Forum, the Senior Dance.

It was a night for the Seniors to join together as a class and kick off their shoes and have a good time. They had no worries on their minds. No one was thinking about homework or the Physics exam on Monday morning, everyone was just concentrating on one thing and that was to have a great evening.

As friends gather to hold him up, James Adams was floating on air from all the excitement.

Peggy Rocha is at ease, now that her sidekick Anna has arrived.

Mark Canner is swept off his feet to know he has such good a friends as Chris and Pete.

Greg Nunes is bothered by the noise, as Kenny Erban lets us know everything is under controll.

Jen & Julie try to see how low they can go while balancing a balloon.

Nothing is going to stop Mike Amaral from having fun at the Senior Dance.

Paul, Don, and Brett are loosening up more and more as the night continues.

Karl and Lee choose to sit down after a tiring night of dancing.

JUNIOR PROM, APRIL 30, 1988

FIRST FORMAL GATHERING

Our third year of High school had come and the event that everyone had been looking forward to had finally arrived: The Junior Prom.

On April 30, 1988, the Class of 1989 gathered together at Demitris for a night that they would never forget. The boys were as handsome as could be in their "debonaire tuxes" and the girls were more elegant in their "perfect gowns" than their dates could have ever imagined.

At first we were hesitant to dance and have a good time, but eventually everyone loosened up and danced the night away. Even though most of the night was spent dancing we still found time to snap pictures of our friends so that in years to come we could look at them and our memories would be as vivid as the day they were taken.

Together we made our Junior Prom a night that would be looked back upon as one of the best nights of our four years spent at Attleboro High School.

Dale Rheaume, Mick Kielty, Gregg Solomon and Eric Cooper take a breather, to catch up on the evening's events.

Paul Cochran ponders on what picture package to buy.

The fun never stopped

On May 15, 1987 was a Sophomore social event. The Sophomore Gathering. The music began as there were songs for the heart. Sophomores were dancing fast and slow. They were stealing the show. The night was late and rumors were spread of where we should go to spend our bread. Chinese or Hardy's, maybe even some parties. But no matter what the place we would be sure to keep the pace.

Freshman Social May 8, 1986

OUR FIRST SOCIAL EVENT

It was a night to remember. We all had champagne (non alcoholic) wishes and caviar dreams. Everyone looked elegant. It was our first semi-formal gathering as a class. The student forum was decorated in an immaculate fashion. The finger sandwiches were delectable. The theme of the social, Stairway To Heaven, captured the essence of the night perfectly. The disc jockey made the finest possible choices of musical selection. What more could a freshman ask for on such a perfect evening.

We will never forget this first enchanting evening which marked our first social event of high school. The social was such a fun time that made us all look forward to the next three years as a class.

TATTLETALE '89

Sensational Seniors

In 1985 we entered Attleboro High School as the class of "89". 1989 seemed to be so far away. It seemed as if we would never be there. Our class was at the beginning of a wonderful journey that it would remember for a lifetime. There was much excitement about entering high school, but we were still only freshmen. We found ourselves lost in a sea of knowledge and understanding. As freshmen, we were still unsure of what to expect and how to adjust to a new environment.

Sophomore year was, perhaps, the most difficult. We were well accustomed to the atmosphere of high school, but still "underclassmen". We weren't the youngest, so no one paid much attention to us, but we weren't the oldest, therefore, no one looked up to us. Being in this position caused our class to form a family.

Finally, we became upperclassmen. It was our junior year and no one could believe it. Our class was more than halfway through our long journey; it was almost 1989 and no one knew where the time went. It was scary to believe that we only had two years left together. With this in mind we decided to make them the best two years of our lives; and that we did.

This brings us to our senior year. It was frightening to believe that what we prepared our whole lives for was less than a year away; graduation. Through our four years in high school we made the family of "89 the strongest class ever. We not only lost, but gained members of our family. Sharing special moments and creating memories made us that much closer. Through this long journey we traveled one path and it was together. Now comes the time we travel separate paths to create our lives without the sense of security we are accustomed to. Everyone of us will travel the road that leads to our hopes and dreams. I grant you every wish of good luck to achieve those dreams. I hope that in your future years you will never forget the memories that blended together through our journey at Attleboro High to create the class of 1989.

Jovial Juniors

The Junior year was one to remember. Our prom was a great success. We had an incredible time at the Junior Luau. Also, the fun we had defeating the seniors in the annual Powderpuff game.

As the years slip by, perhaps, you will dust off this book and remember the junior year as one of the best years of your life.

SUPERB SOPHOMORES

I feel very honored being part of the class of 1991. You have made my job as class President most enjoyable. We've accomplished a lot as sophomores. For example, our class rings, a successful fundraiser, the planning for the sophomore gathering, and our great sign of spirit "winners" of the Thanksgiving day float.

I thank you all, and a special thanks to our new advisors, Mr. Jutras, Mr. Watterson, and Mrs. Casey.

Best Wishes,

Fabulous Freshmen

The freshman class has had a fine year. Earlier it held elections for student council. The students elected nine people; hard workers who contribute to every meeting. The class put together a float last Thanksgiving which turned out well. Also, the annual fundraiser which was held turned out well too and raised $6,000 for the class treasury. The most important factor was that everybody participated in the fundraiser and made it a huge success. The freshmen have shown spirit throughout the year at rallies and games by rooting and cheering. This shows all the classes that even though the freshman are the newest students to the school, they aren't the least caring. The year did go well and the entire class feels that it will walk away with four good years upon graduating from A.H.S.

Student Council

The leaders of tomorrow

Student Council at Attleboro High School is the link representing students ideas and concerns to the Administration as well as representing the high school within the community. Student Council gives interested students the chance for leadership experience and involvement with many school activities. Council consists of elected members from each class as well as many honorary non-elected students who wish to have an active roll in their school.

Student Council helps in the planning of events for both the entire student body and also the community such as pep rallies, spirit weeks, canned food drives, the annual Youth and Elderly Conference and many other school and community projects.

This year's Council is striving to provide another great year at A.H.S. We appreciate the student body's support and the community recognition received for our various activities.

A look at different societies

Steve is still having dreams about his trip.

I'm Mariko Kudaro, an exchange student from Japan. I want to thank so many people who helped me this year. I had a wonderful year at A.H.S. I found that American high school is so much different from Japanese. There is a lot more freedom and fun here.

At first I felt lost here because there was so much freedom. Americans are so friendly. I was always encouraged by their kindness. Their broad minds moved me deeply. It was hard for me to say "Good-Bye" to A.H.S. I'll never forget this experience in the U.S.

Again, Thank you so much for everything you did for me!

Mariko Kudaro

If any of you underclassmen out there ever have a chance to go on Close-up, GO! It was the best week of learning I've ever had. Not only do you stay in Washington D.C, but you stay with other students from different parts of the country. My roommates were from Indiana, and before I met them I thought "Oh no, farm boys." But when I finally was introduced, I realized they were good kids, just like us. While doing Close-up, I learned a lot about the government. Being in our nations capital, the heart of our country, was very exciting. Close-up is a very special and informative program. I hope that Attleboro High will send a group every year.

Where it all sums up

The Math Team is a group of students that enjoy doing Math. We compete in three leagues with several area schools. These include Bishop Feehan, Taunton, Seekonk, and Dighton Rehoboth. Our season is from September to March. We started the season with a third place finish. The meets are extremely competitive with six rounds of competition. The rounds include Arithmetic, Algebra 1, Geometry, Algebra 2, Trigonometry, and the team round. Each member chooses the round that they wish to compete in. The Math Team is comprised of students grades 8-12 and taking Geometry to advanced placement Calculus, honors.

Putting it all together

The Write Stuff is Attleboro High School's literary magazine. The magazine is printed on an annual basis, and features the work of any and all Attleboro High students interested in having their work appear in an issue. This work includes both writing and artwork- several comic strips have appeared in past issues. Winner of several literary awards, The Write Stuff runs usually about four issues a year, each issue having some sort of theme. (Previous themes have included a Christmas issue, a Valentine's issue, and, one of our more recent issues, an "On the Road" issue with automobiles as its theme.) The magazine is made available to the student body at a small charge of 25 cents- a small price to pay for literature of this quality.

After alot of determination and hard work, Attleboro High School's first newspaper finally came out this year. It was a combined effort between the staff and the advisor, Donna Camire. The Echo is designed to keep students as well as faculty informed and up-to-date about events happening before, during and after school. It is a good experience if you want to be a journalist or even if you choose another path in life. Every time an issue comes out it gives the staff a feeling of accomplishment.

Just the right pieces

It has been almost fifteen years since A.H.S. has had a chess club. As might be expected we are having a tough time getting off the ground. Once we are established, however, we intend to play against other clubs in the area. Not necessarily high school clubs, but competition nevertheless. That's what chess is all about, competition, against your opponent and yourself.

Lending a Helping Hand

There are some very helpful students at A.H.S. They volunteer to aid Ms. Nerney in the resource center or donate their time to one of the offices. In the resource center their responsibilities include stamping books and organizing the card catalogue. Office aides help out in either one of the house or guidance offices. Their duties include answering the telephone or providing assistance to other students. These special students are a very important part of our school.

Holding the note

Yawn . . . . "It's seven o'clock already!! I'm late for choir!!" Common words heard by choir members. At seven o'clock every weekday morning the choir arrives at school for their daily routine of singing. Many people think "Why do they come to school at seven o'clock just to sing? That's crazy." Not to us. Choir is enjoyment and fun; everyone wants to be there and that's what makes it work. You get out of it, what you give. Everyone gives it all they've got. That is why choir is the best.

Playing to the new beat

"Is that a curve? No! It's a straight line! Get into the curve!"

This is just one common phrase you would hear at an A.H.S. marching band practice. You would also hear yelling, whistle blowing, and good music. But as we march onto the field during a football game, you can definitely see the meaning of spirit and dedication. Believe me, the definition of fun is not playing your instrument in 20 degree weather with your mouth frozen to the mouthpiece and your fingers stuck to the keys or spinning a cold metal flag, rather it is the feeling of accomplishment after performing a nearly perfect show. The closeness of each band and colorguard member is what brings us back to perform each week.

Caught in the act

It's opening night. Emotions and energies are running high. We, the cast, have all been working for so long, we've put in so much time—all for these few hours. The show has to be perfect, or at least as close as we can possibly get it. Our hard work is finally about to pay off, but only if our performance is good as we know it should be. There are only seconds of stage time for every hour of rehearsal and memorization, but we live for those fleeting moments. We have to make them count.

People often remark to us that they could never get up on stage in front of people, but it's not nearly as hard as many assume it must be. As ridiculous as it may sound, many of us are very shy to get up and deliver something to a group camouflaged by makeup and costumes, and armed with the lines we've memorized, the bright theater lights blind our eyes from a closer view of the audience. And fear stands no chance of winning the battle. After all, it isn't us before the audience: it's the characters we have become, so what is there to fear?

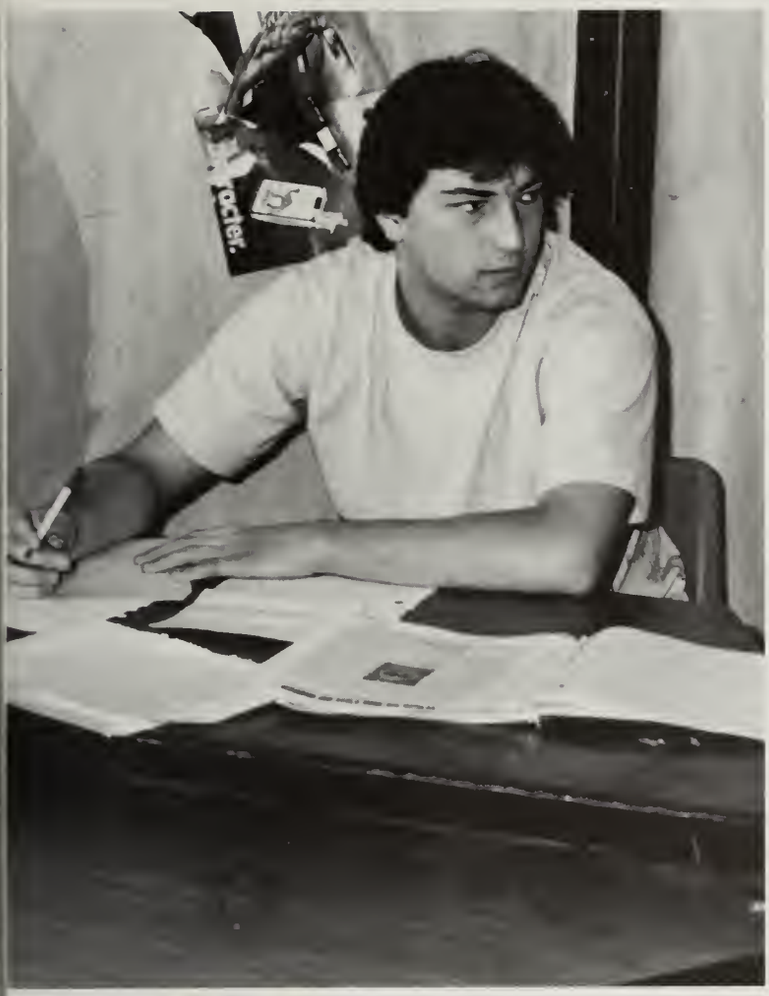
The perfect place to relax



Senior Lounge is a place for seniors to recuperate from their years of schoolwork. The lounge is located in the old school store in A building. The seniors have a wall on which they put up class symbols such as pictures of favorite stars, the latest gossip, and funny jokes. There are vending machines in the lounge (one of the advantages of being a senior). My favorite snack is peanut butter crackers after Trigonometry. These are Mike's favorites too. Senior lounge has given us wonderful memories of our last year of high school.

The week of essence

Dressing up can be a lot of fun at Attleboro. It's really funny to see all the different costumes that your friends wore. This year, on Halloween, dress up day, many students showed their spirit.

One minute you would see a gorrilla jumping down the hallway and other times you would see a couple of clowns joking between each other. All these things make spirit week the fun that it is.

Throughout the week the students had different themes to dress up as. These ranged from toga's on one day to boxer shorts on another. Over all the week was a big success and I hope in the future the turn out that we had will be just as well for incoming students.

It's the girls turn now!

This day was a memorable one for the girls. "Was all the practice worth it?," they asked each other. "Suppose I drop the ball at the game?" "Did you see the size of that girl on the other team?" These thoughts were running through the girls' minds, but in any event the game was a lot of fun.

Along with all the excitement the boy cheerleaders kept the crowd going, and the players moving. Unfortunately, this day had to come to an end, but the Senior class congratulated the juniors on a fair and fun game! Good luck next year to both classes.

Dear Class of 1989:

On behalf of the staff at Attleboro High School, congratulations on the completion of this first phase of your education. This school has attempted to provide you with knowledge and skills that will enable you to continue learning for the rest of your life. We hope that we have provided a climate that enabled you to make long lasting friendships and fond memories that will stay with you forever.

Whether you are entering the world of work or furthering your education, we wish you success in these endeavors.

ART

The Visual Arts program was designed for the student who enjoys working with art materials, who enjoys using his/her hands and calculating through that person's eyes and not through a calculator. It is a way to express your ideas through painting, drawing, designing, constructing, and shaping. The student is able to show the work at the annual Arts Night held here at Attleboro High.

COMMERCIAL DESIGN

James Burbank

Phiplip McCabe

Commercial Design is a class for motivated students who wish to pursue an occupation in the art field - specifically Graphic Design. Attention is given to design and composition, and various community projects such as creating bulletin boards and city signs are also distributed amongst the students (usually second and third year.)

Recent additions to the Design curricular include two Tech. Graphics computer systems and on Macintosh SE Computer, all of which are used in high - speed art production.

The students work in a professional atmosphere where the instructors assign projects and set deadlines which which prepare the student for the business-art world.

ELECTRONICS

Electronics is one of the most technical fields, not only for the students but administration as well. This field requires specialized parts which can be hard to acquire. I not only enjoy electronics, but realize it is a field with a future. The electronic field is always changing, but the school is trying to keep in touch with current trends. One example of this is the new robotic section coming next year.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE AND BILINGUAL STUDIES

Maurice Camire, Department Head

The Foreign Language Department offers to the students of Attleboro High School courses in five languages, French, German, Latin, Portuguese, and Spanish. Beyond the regular program many field trips to restaurants, museums, and theater performances are also made available to students. Perhaps the highlight of each year is the International Food Fair which is held in March. The students' input and participation in all aspects of the program are encouraged in all of the department's activities.

The Bilingual and E.S.L. Department focuses its energy on the students who recently immigrated to the U.S.A. Its most important curriculum issue is the command of English verbal and written skills. However, courses in Social Studies, Science, Spanish, and Math complete the students' programs. Each year, the department sponsors an American-style picnic and field-day. It's always a big hit with the students and teachers.

ENGLISH

The English department takes the lead in high technology by expanding its computer center to include not only Zenith, but Macintosh microcomputers as well. The computer room is offered to English students of all levels. Vocabulary and grammar are still part of the curriculum, but along with mastering English skills as taught in the pst, students are able to learn the functions of the computers as well. The students are taught to write, proofread, check spelling, and print out essays and reports while having fun doing it! Most importantly, the students gain valuable familiarity with computers that are playing an increasing role in our world.

GRAPHIC ARTS

Graphic Arts consists of many different regions which are useful to a student. There are three areas of operation. The first is the stripping area. This is where all the preparation and beginning work is done. The second area is the press area. This is the place where work is done by presses available to students. These include the Ryaki, superchief, and Heidelberg. The building work which consists of paper cutting, folding, and stapling is the third area of operation. All of these aspects prepare a student to attain the knowledge to pursue a career as a graphic artsmen.

VOCATIONAL ADVISORY COMMITTEE

Advisory Committees are required by the General Laws of Massachusetts to act as Vocational Technical Advisory Committees to each of the Vocational Programs as well as to each of programs developed with state or federal funding.

Vocational Advisory Committees are intended to serve a vital function in the planning, operation, and evaluation of vocational education programs. The advisory committee members have a close involvement with the administration, staff, and students which help to keep all vocational programs current with the training required by industry at the present time.

Business and industry have been shaken by the explosion of new technology. Many jobs are not done the way they were years ago, and scientific and technological advances will continue to have a profound impact on the labor market. The cooperation between advisory committee and teaching staff can prepare todays vocational students for tommorrows jobs or continued education to meet a vocational students licensing or degree requirements.

Advisory committees make significant contributions to the quality of the vocational education programs at Attleboro High School.

CROSS COUNTRY

There is something about the cross country team that is different other teams in the school. Any participant can see that the differences lie not only in the nature of the sport, but in the attitude that makes the team so special.

Cross-Country requires both dedication and determination. When someone falters in these two areas, the rest of the team is always there to offer support and encouragement. It is this attitude that ties the team together as one.

As a result of this special attitude, being a member of this team builds confidence and a positive character with these characteristics a person is almost guaranteed to be successful in life.

FIELD HOCKEY

Although our goals for a winning season were not met, we were very successful at working together as a team. Our spirit and unity were demonstrated both on and off the field. There is a certain closeness on the team that is not found on many teams. Over the years we have built strong friendships with one another.

Along with the disappointments came many good times. Our "Car Wash" fundraiser was great fun, and practice never provided a dull moment.

VARSITY FOOTBALL

The 1988 football team experienced many changes this season. Newcomer Dale Caparaso replaced Chet Hanewich as head coach of the Blue Bombardiers, and brought with him an entirely new coaching staff and run-oriented offense.

Hampered by injuries to many key players at the beginning of the season, the team fell out of Superbowl contention early. However, the team pulled together and worked hard to make the best of a bad season.

We, the captains of the team, along with the other seniors, would like to thank our coaches for their patience and support both on and off the field. We would also like to wish next year's team the best of luck and a winning season.

Captain Patti Engler, co-captains Stacy Quaglia and Allison McGee

This year started out with high expectations. Eighteen girls formed a team last spring. This was not just a team of cheerleaders, but a team of friends.

The 1988 varsity football squad spent many long hours working together to try to perfect our sport. After many antagonizing practices, broken bones, and pulled muscles we embarked on our summer camp adventure. This camp proved to be rewarding, not only with learning new material and having responsibility, but also with awards. We won a trophy for overall excellence, a spirit stick, and several blue ribbons. (One for every event we entered!)

The beginning of the school year brought about the beginning of a different experience. The new football coach brought us several ideas and also allowed us the freedom to do many new things for the players. Although we didn't have a winning season, we still benefited from it because we were united with the players and learned more about what they do.

I want to thank the squad for the many adventures, both good and bad, that I encountered over the past year. This season proved to be a memorable one and I feel that we have all learned from it. Best of luck in the future!

SOCCER

This season was filled with ups and downs. The team had raw talent and individual skill, but were unable to put it together. We had a record number of seventeen seniors. A close group of friends, they worked very hard under Coach Pereira's leadership and had many fun times.

Close games against Durfee and New Bedford were high points of the season along with the win over Seekonk, 9-0. Also, three players were selected to the League All Star Team.

GIRLS' SWIMMING

Pam: Do you think the team had a positive attitude going into the swim season?

Jen: Going into the season we weren't very confident about being successful. Not having our own pool discouraged us. However, when things became organized our confidence and spirit grew stronger.

Pam: Do you think traveling to practices and all away meets brought the team closer together?

Jen: Yes, all the traveling helped the team to become closer. We won and lost as a team. It wasn't an individual sport. We were all behind each other, cheering one another on and encouraging each other to do their very best.

Pam: In spite of all the inconviences and problems, would you say we had a successful season?

Jen: Yes!!!!!

VOLLEYBALL

The 1988 season proved to be a lot more than a record of wins and losses for A.H.S. Volleyball. It was a building time for the attitude of the team. We not only had to learn to challenge each other, but ourselves as well.

Volleyball is about as much a team sport as exists. Volleyball players are a special breed of athletes, striving not only for personal bests, but also for team wins. The girls on this year's squad mastered this with ease and therefore can be proud to be a member of such a group. They are really special people and I as one of the captains wish them all the luck in the world.

Boy's Basketball Finals

Boys' Basketball

The boys basketball team completed one of the most successful seasons in the decade. The success of the team was due to a partnership between the team and the student body. The team contributed hard work and determination on the court. The student body contributed moral support combined with tremendous enthusiasm. This combination proved hard to beat as the A.H.S. varsity won its first seven games of the season. Including the first championship of the North Attleboro Holiday Tournament for A.H.S. in ten years. The team played as a unit with scoring honors being shared by all players. A spirit of cooperation existed on the team as well as a spirit of school pride existing in the stands. The 1988-89 basketball team had two main goals at the onset of the season. One was to have a winning season and the other was to restore school pride in our team. The team feels that we have accomplished both of these goals.

Building the spirit

Numerous things were accomplished this past basketball season. Improvement was made, spirit was raised, and games were won.

The cheerleading squad had the pleasure of witnessing crowd participation. Our attempts to involve the fans proved to be successful.

With each season the squad improves. The experience of some and the fresh ideas of others keep the team moving towards higher goals.

I feel that the remaining members can achieve those goals with hard work. Good luck in reaching them!

GIRLS BASKETBALL

The 1988 - 89 Girls Basketball Team improved in many ways this season. Not only did we win, but an overall positive team attitude was created. This was something the team lacked a few years ago. Much of this year's success is due to the overwhelming amount of talent and spirit which the underclassmen possess. We played with determination and never gave up. We are sure that in the future, this "Never Say Die" team will be one that many will look up to with pride and respect.

"You've got what it takes, girls!"

BOYS' GYMNASTICS

Overall the season was the biggest success of the team in years. We made it to the states for the second year in a row, finishing fifth, one place better than last year. We also finished second place in the south eastern finals. Our great achievements are mostly due to the fact that the team is comprised of a lot of underclassmen giving the team alot of depth. Unlike some teams almost everyone competes, we don't just rely of two on three individuals. Our talent is spread out within the team. This was a great asset to us, and will be in the future as well. Mr. Martin has aspirations of the state meet being held at AHS next year, mostly because of the fact that we stand a good chance of being the state champions next year.

GIRLS GYMNASTICS

The 1988-89 Girls Gymnastics team got off to a good start with three wins. Despite some minor setbacks, the team had a good season. This was due to strong performances by our underclassmen and the return of our assistant coach Amii LeGendre. Her help made it easier for the boys and girls to share Mr. Martin, who, as always, tried to be fair to each team. This year the team learned to be independent, which also made Mr. Martin's job easier. Despite his nagging, Mr. Martin was very supportive. We'd like to thank him for that- Good luck next year.

BOYS' SWIMMING

The boy's swim team entered their season not knowing what to expect. With 11 new swimmers all giving 100 percent, we gave it our best.
With the disappointing record of 1-7 we remained spirited throughout the season.
Eventhough we were forced to swim at a local YMCA pool, it turned out we had many good swimmers and divers. Freshman, Kyle Browning, was the standard force for the swim team.
The team is now in a rebuilding season, but in the years to come we are sure to "outswim" the rest.

Building blocks for future victories

Often enough, playing a high school sport can be a trying experience. The mental and physical strains can be unbearable. Being an underclassman in a sport can be even more strenuous.

Even so, being an underclassman in athletics can be extremely fun. You can often try to improve and learn from the senior players, as well as watching your progress and setting your goals. Often you find yourself dreaming about the day when you get your chance to be a starter. The idea of a scholarship and playing in college keeps you working day after day. As an underclassman if you excel in the sport you can become an immediate starter and the excitement builds even more.

Being an underclassman has its disadvantages, as well. Many times you wonder why your out practicing in morning or in bad weather. You ask yourself if it is really worth it. As an underclassman you are treated with less respect than the seniors. Many of the team's frustrations are taken out on the younger team members. When you do a great job in practice and no one notices, you ask yourself, "Why am I out here?"

All and all, being an underclassman in sports has its ups and downs. The hope of somebody being a senior starter keeps you going, and dreaming for the day you get your chance to "Shine In The Sun!"

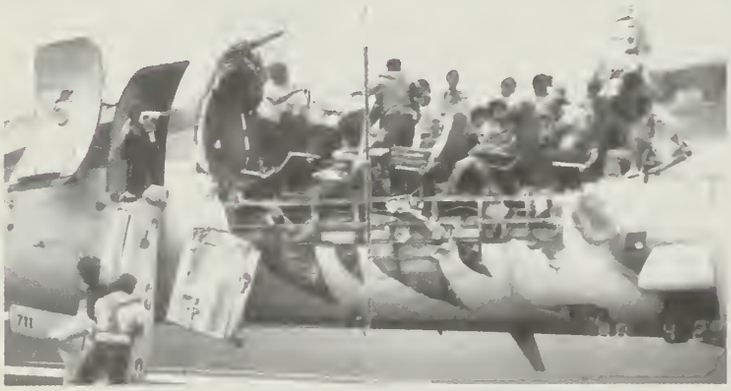
THE YEAR IN PICTURES

The world gasped when Greg Louganis collided with the springboard. Blood ran down his back, but the peerles one returned immediately, nailing dive after dive—and two Olympic wins.



When Aloha Airlines Flight 243 lost a hunk of its fuselage 24,000 feet up and 100 miles from Honolulu. Somehow the pilot guided the plane to an emergency landing on Maui, and though 60 of the 95 people on board were injured, only one, a stewardess, was killed.

After losing 67 pounds in four months, Oprah Winfrey is the (dry) toast of television. Says an aide, "She's very much into broccoli."

One manchild to another: Hoffman and Cruise in Rain Man.

More than 50 miles of New York beaches are closed to swimmers because of debris-hospital waste, syringes and blood vials-washing ashore.

A raffish rabbit and Bob Hoskins star in an animated live-action film where the cartoon folk have realistic shadows. Who Framed Roger Rabbit is the summer hit.

Hockey player Wayne Gretsky and Janet Jones join themselves together in marriage.

The motley rescue team of Eskimo hunters, oil companies, environmentalists, Soviet icebreakers and the Alaska National Guard struggled to free three California gray whales icebound off Barrow.

Roy Orbison, 52: The biggest rival, a three-octave warbler who moved many a pretty woman and was reborn as a Traveling Wilbury.

Andy Gibb, 30: The kid brother never joined the three Bee Gee, but his first three singles topped the charts in the late '70s. A millionaire at 19, he was drained by cocaine addiction and died bankrupt.

After a long hard campaigne Michael Dukakis returns back to Governor of Massachusetts.

Princess Sarah Ferguson poses while holding newborn baby in her arms.

At the summer Olympics, the world's best woman athlete, Jackie Joyner-Kersee, sets a record in the heptathlon and also wins the long jump.

"I have sinned against you," sobbed TV evangelist Jimmy Swaggart, tacitly admitting encounters with a Louisiana prostitute.

The space shuttle discovery, equipped with more than 400 design changes, is successfully launched.

Along with her fortune, Christina Onassis leaves her daughter a legacy of loneliness.

Across the country's southern regions, people thrust their emaciated bodies forward and scream "Look how hungry I am!"

No wonder Nightmare on Elm Street's Freddy Krueger is smiling. Fans snapped up $15 million in scalded-face masks and finger-knife gloves.

Geraldo Rivera's devil worship special was a top-rated documentary, but his "Teen Hatemongers" show earned him a broken nose.

At Tufts, Tracy Chapman, 24, studied anthropology. Now, with gritty songs, a husky, haunting voice and no glitz, she keeps concert audiences spellbound. Her debut album has sold more than 2.5 million copies.

After a long hard election, former Vice President George Bush has just been appointed President of the United States.

As a crowd of 300,000 spectators watched, three Italian jets collided directly above them. Two crashed in a nearby wood, but the third plunged into the crowd, killing 70 and leaving 333 injured.

Sporting his trademark earring and stubble, George Michael, 25, stormed stages on four continents. That leering sexiness sent his debut LP, Faith, to the top of the pop, adult and black charts, a new achievement in music.

As Seoul prepared for the Olympics, South Korean youths demonstrated for removal of U.S. basas and reunification with North Korea. In a May riot, a passerby was engulfed in the flames of a firebomb. She escaped unhurt.

Where the pieces come together.

JoElle askes Mike for his advise on a copy.

Chad checks to make sure an Ad was not forgotten.

Sisters, Jen and Aimee show their enthusiasm for being part of the Y.B. Staff.

Julie reads her list of phone numbers, to see which company she will call next.

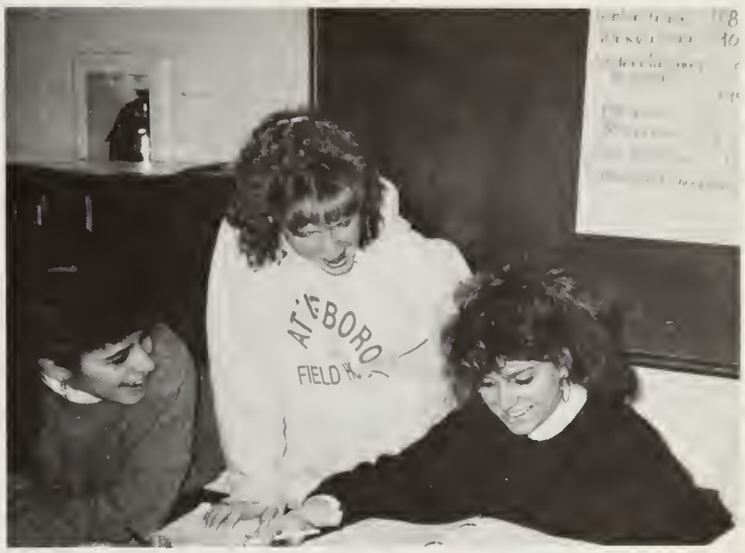
Lisa and Stacy work together on Activity pages.

"Jeanne, your suppose to keep your eyes on your work!!"

Gina, Heather, and Keri organize the planner.

In order to remove frustrations of missed deadlines, the Y.B. Staff get together and build paramids.

Bussiness Manager, Brenda Fontaine is always happy to receive a check in the mail.



EDITORS '89

Anna Pereira and Patti Engler

As the school year draws to a close, we take "a closer look" at the people and events that made the past four years memorable.

There are certain individuals whom we would like to thank for their contributions to the 1989 Tattletale.

Mr. Donald Frederick is the first. "Fred", as he was known to his students, taught us everything we know. He inspired us and got us started off on the right foot.

Gary Melino, our school photographer is second. Gary's extra work provided us with all of the specific pictures we had hoped to obtain.

Dan Smith, our Josten's representative, is next. His expertise, understanding, and many visits to the school helped us come close to meeting our deadlines!

The yearbook staff would like to give a special thanks to Mr. James Burbank. We are extremely grateful that he took over the position as yearbook advisor. In the beginning we thought the book would never be completed, but with his patience, devotion, and sense of humor it turned out successfully. Things were difficult at times due to the fact that he was learning along with us, but with his guidance and support we can take a closer look back upon what makes the class of '89, a special one.
